NEW PROBLEMS TO ENGROSS PRES. COOLIDGE

MAY HAVE CONTESTS WITH U. S. SENATE

SECRET ANGLO-FRENCH NAVAL AGREEMENT IS DISTURBING

MAY LEAD HIM INTO DIPLOMATIC CONTROVERSY WITH ENGLAND, FRANCE

Washington, Sept. 10.—(UP)—A half dozen new problems of major import having arisen since he left on his vacation in June, President Coolidge is returning to Washington this week prepared to meet soon most of the issues thus presented.

In doing so, it appears he will have more than one battle with the senate on his hands, while it is also probable that one problem, that dealing with the secret Anglo-French naval agreement, may lead him into a diplomatic controversy with England and France.

Included among questions awaiting solution are those involving the estimated budget deficit, the Anglo-French compromise, ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty, the naval construction bill and confirmation of the appointment of Roy O. West of Chicago as secretary of the interior. Meanwhile, he will also be concerned with writing his final message to congress and with details of the budget for the next fiscal year.

Other problems such as farm relief, flood control, inland waterways, army housing, the St. Lawrence waterway, Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam, the public utilities investigation, railroad consolidation and the mining situation are expected to be shunted into the background, temporarily at least.

According to advance information, his first act probably will be to demand that the departments and bureaus materially and immediately reduce their current expenditures to avoid the budget deficit predicted by Brig. Gen. Herbert M. Lord, budget director.

Lord recently reported to the president that in his opinion the treasury was facing a deficit at the end of the fiscal year of $94,279,346.

MONTGOMERY WARD CONTINUES ITS UPURSH INTO NEW HIGH LEVELS

By ELMER C. WALZER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Montgomery Ward continued its uprush into new high territory on the stock exchange today, reaching 247 up 7 1/4 points from the previous close. This issue led the market into higher ground in early dealings today, rails taking on renewed strength and industrials rising a point to more than three points.

Aside from Montgomery Ward's spectacular demonstration against shorts, amusement shares held the spot light. Warner Brothers Pictures spurted up 3 7-8 points to new high ground at 129 7-8 and Fox Films rose four points to a record at 117 1/2.

Mergers converging around these two companies are being discussed in Wall Street.

HOT CAMPAIGN IN NEW ENGLAND IS ANTICIPATED

MAINE HOLDING FIRST STATE ELECTION OF PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

PROGRAM TO BE DRAWN TO HOLD MOIST NORTHEAST SECTION AGAINST DEMOCRATS

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 10.—Plans for a hot campaign in New England were taken up today by Herbert Hoover as Maine voters went to their polling booths in the first state election of this presidential year.

A Massachusetts delegation headed by the Bay state national committeeman, Louis K. Liggett, was called into the personal headquarters of the republican presidential nominee to draw a program for holding the moist northeast section against the democratic attack.

So important is the necessity of holding these states down east that Hoover is considering two speeches there instead of one, the United Press was informed on the highest authority. Such a step would mean abandonment of the candidate's schedule for only four campaign addresses.

The nominee has been led to believe his republican supporters seeking state offices in Maine will receive a substantial majority, and republican leaders here are attempting to revive the old phrase, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation." Franklin Fort, secretary of the republican national committee, just returned from a speaking engagement in Maine, predicted a "heavy" republican majority for the entire state ticket.

Fort's statement came after an announcement from Chairman Hubert Work of the republican national committee, attempting to crush the widespread whisper campaign now going on. Work said some of the stories were so scurrilous "that I would not willingly show them as an exhibit."

The stories are being directed against both candidates, Work contended. Hoover planned to finish up work today on his Newark speech to be delivered next Monday. If he is satisfied with the results he may slip away in a day or two for a fishing trip down the Chesapeake Bay.

St. Paul, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Membership of the Western Federation of the Aid Association for Lutherans had been doubled in the past five years, William H. Zuchke, Appleton, treasurer, declared here during a conference of the organization attended by 100 delegates from Minnesota and Wisconsin.

LOUIS SCHNEIDER, FAIR RACER, STILL IN SERIOUS SHAPE

St. Paul, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Louis Schneider, Indianapolis pilot, whose racing car crashed at the Minnesota state fair here late Saturday, was still in serious condition today at the Northern Pacific hospital.

The youth who established new dirt track records for the mile and five mile distances on Wednesday, was not entirely conscious this morning, 42 hours after the accident.

Physicians said Schneider's condition was "fair" and that although he had suffered a fractured skull, crushed chest and multiple cuts on the head and body he had "an even chance" of recovery.

Gang Feuds Flare in Chicago and New York, Two States Are Scenes of Bloody Jail Breaks

DATA STOLEN FROM ROGUES' GALLERY IN EAST

6 CONVICTS SHOT TO DEATH AS BAND OF 13 BREAKS FOR FREEDOM

LOUISIANA STATE PENITENTIARY AT BATON ROUGE, LA., SCENE OF TROUBLE

While gang feuds flared again in Chicago and New York, Louisiana and Massachusetts were the scenes of jail breaks that took eight lives and resulted in the wounding of 11 persons.

Police in New York and Chicago mobilized to prevent further outbreaks of the shooting that took the life of Antonio Lombardo in Chicago.

Vital photographs disappeared from the rogues' gallery at Philadelphia as the grand jury which is investigating the gang rule there prepared to summon witnesses in the murder of Hughie McLoon and Dan O'Leary, said to be members of rival gangs that warred for the bootlegging privileges.

Ten days before he was to go on trial for murder, Stephen Hoppe tried to shoot his way out of the Norfolk county jail at Dedham, Mass. Two trustees were killed and a guard and Hoppe himself were injured in the fight.

Six convicts were shot to death as a band of thirteen broke for freedom at Louisiana state penitentiary at Baton Rouge, La. Another prisoner was wounded, probably fatally, and eight persons were injured.

Police of Dedham, Conn., were searching for Orrin Fredetti and Harold Jackson, who placed dummies in their beds and escaped from the Middlesex county jail. Jackson has a wooden leg.

A detachment of United States infantry co-operated with Newport, R. I., police in the search for five soldier-prisoners who escaped some time during the night from the army prison at Fort Adams by sawing through the bars of a cell.

Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 10.—Six convicts were dead today, eight others persons, including four convicts, were suffering from gunshot wounds, four other convicts were known to be at liberty and another, Royce Collier, was missing and is believed to have been killed in a gun battle between guards and fourteen convicts who escaped from a work camp at Angola state prison, near here, last night.

The dead: Cleveland Ownes, New Orleans. Stephen Beck, New Orleans. Jack Martin, St. Landry Parish. Stanley Proctor, New Orleans. Arthur Kinchen, Tangipahoa Parish.

The fourteen convicts last night approached Guards Higginbotham and Peblot and demanded the camp gates be opened. The guards obeyed and the rebellious prisoners rushed a nearby gun rack, obtained six sawed off shotguns and started toward the Mississippi river ferry.

Captain John Singleton and Trusty Broom opened fire on the fleeing men. Their fire was answered by the convicts and Broom fell dead. Kinchen was also killed by the guards.

Archie Walters, boat tender, refused to turn over a railroad's boat to the other convicts and was shot and seriously wounded.

The closely pursued desperadoes then embarked on the railroad launch followed by another launch in which were the armed prison guards.

SIR HARRY LAUDER ILL AT HIS HOME NEAR GLASGOW

London, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Sir Harry Lauder is ill at his home in Dunoon, near Glasgow.

Lauder took a chill while fishing last week and his voice was affected. The doctor ordered him to stay in bed a week. An engagement at the Alhambra theater in Glasgow was cancelled and other future bookings were held up.

It was reported to be the first time in 25 years that Lauder cancelled a vaudeville engagement. At the Dunoon residence a spokesman told the press that "Sir Harry is not seriously ill. Only his voice is affected, but it is rather bad."

TONG SHAN SEIZED BY THE NATIONALISTS

1,000 TROOPS OF FIRST DIVISION SURROUND THE CHINESE CITY

SOME INFANTRY FIGHTING OCCURRED, MOSTLY IN CHINESE SECTIONS

Hong Kong, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Tong Shan has been seized by nationalist troops, advices received here said today.

One thousand troops of the first division, twelfth army, suddenly appeared from the northwest Sunday morning and surrounded the city.

Some infantry fighting occurred, mostly in the Chinese sections. Foreigners were advised to move to the foreign quarter, which is defended by the marines.

Five armored trains and 17 ordinary trains were in Tong Shan when the nationalists arrived. Retreating troops were reported continuing southward from Shantung and Chih provinces, mostly by railroad. The stations at Wali and Kuyeh were congested with traffic.

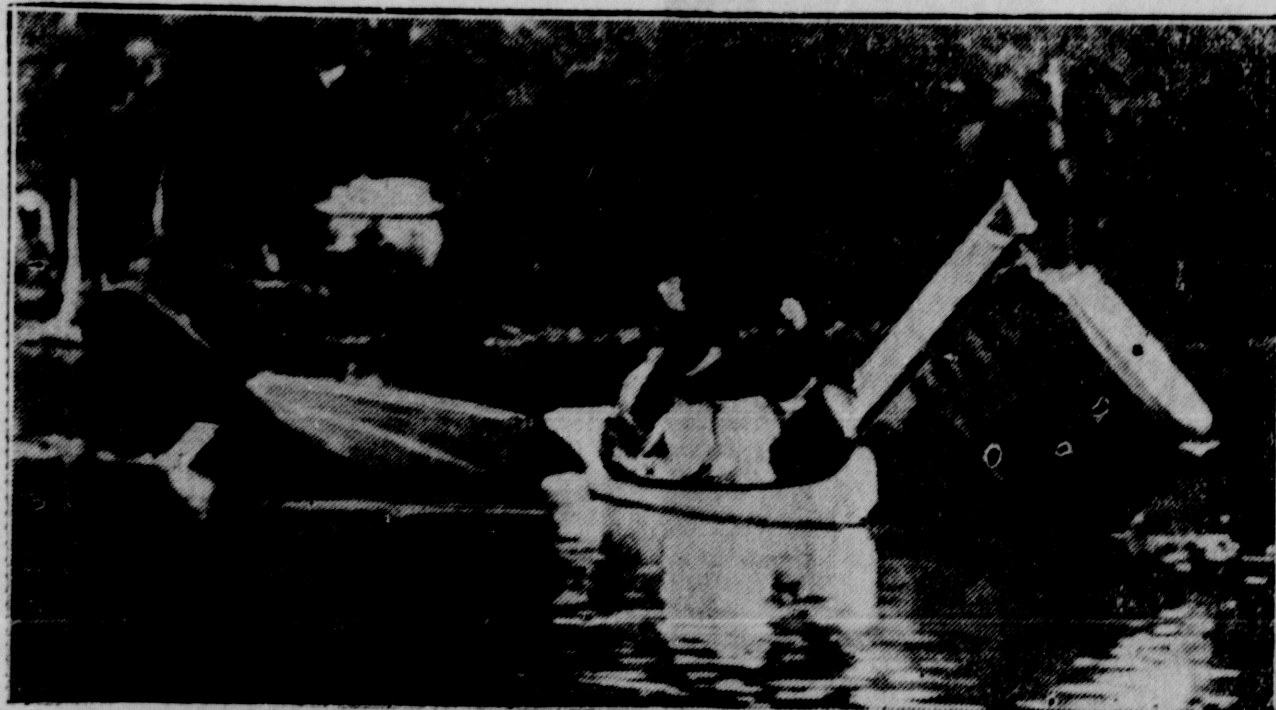

approached Guards Higginbotham and Peblot and demanded the camp gates be opened. The guards obeyed and the rebellious prisoners rushed a nearby gun rack, obtained six sawed off shotguns and started toward the Mississippi river ferry.

Captain John Singleton and Trusty Broom opened fire on the fleeing men. Their fire was answered by the convicts and Broom fell dead. Kinchen was also killed by the guards.

PLANE DIVES INTO RIVER

When the cabin monoplane Miss Packard struck high tension wires while making a forced landing recently near Rockford, Ill., it plunged into the Rock River, killing Pilot M. E. Headley and seriously injuring four passengers. Of the injured, all officials of the Rockford Schacht-Tuck Electric Company, H. H. Tuck, president, and Ray Ives, sales manager, are expected to die. When Headley was extricated from the submerged plane his neck was found to be broken.

ON THRESHOLD OF LIFE AND DEATH MYSTERY

PROF. A. V. HILL, NOTED PHYSIOLOGIST, ANNOUNCES FINDINGS

HAS STUDIED MUSCLES AND CELLS OF THE HUMAN BODY

By KEITH JONES

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Prof. A. V. Hill, noted physiologist, apparently is on the threshold of solving important features of the age old mystery of life and death, the Evening Standard's correspondent telegraphed today from Glasgow, where the British Association for the Advancement of Science is meeting.

The statement said Prof. Hill, by studying the muscles and nerve cells of the human body, had reached startling conclusions about the difference in sources of energy between human beings and machines, as well as varying reasons for the disintegration of the body and death.

The correspondent forecast "a scientific sensation" when the details are disclosed. He said it was extremely probable that the discoveries of Hill would lead to as great a conflict of opinion as Darwin's theories aroused.

The correspondent continued, "it is premature to specify the exact advance registered by Professor Hill," but hinted that what already has been achieved "may concern even the origin of life." The correspondent said the discoveries probably would be made public almost immediately.

The dispatch continued: "Professor Hill's conclusions are based on the fact that when the human mechanism runs down, with consequent death, the cause is the failure of the oxygen supply. That leads to interruption of oxydization and causes death. The interruption, however, is something very different from that which takes place when an internal combustion engine runs out of petrol. While such an engine is not destroyed by the stoppage, the human mechanism is. Apparently disintegration prevents the all-important process of oxydization."

Professor Hill, who is 41, won the Nobel prize for medicine in 1922.

The announcement of Hill's supposed discoveries came just as Britain was engaged in a renewal of the recent national discussion of life after death. The subject was brought to the fore in two addresses made yesterday by the two foremost students of spiritualism in England—Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

Lodge, in a scientific sermon at Wellington church in Glasgow, affirmed his belief in life after death and in "one single mind" that controls the universe.

Doyle reaffirmed declaration of communication with the dead, saying "I have been in communication with minds of certain people who have parted from their bodies."

Conan Doyle addressed an audience of 2,000 at the Congress of the International Spiritualist Federation in Queens Hall, London.

Sir Arthur announced that Earl Haig, within three days of his death, had sent him a long message from the spirit world. Its contents, he added, were of interest only to Haig's relatives, but they had declined to say whether they would like to see the message.

Conan Doyle illustrated his lecture with spirit photographs, showing ghosts, fairies and faces appearing in the center of ectoplasmic emanations from mediums.

FIRST CAMPAIGN TRIP BEGINS SUNDAY NIGHT

DURING PRESENT WEEK HE WILL OUTLINE SIX CAMPAIGN SPEECHES

TO SPEND MUCH OF HIS TIME IN STUDY AT EXECUTIVE MANSION

By THOMAS L. STOKES

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith faces a busy week in preparation for his first campaign trip, beginning next Sunday night, in which he will show himself to the voters in the land beyond the Mississippi river.

The democratic candidate will devote most of his time this week to outlining the six campaign speeches he will make on this first tour, spending much time in his study at the executive mansion—a good deal of it in the late hour nights, as is his custom in work of this sort.

He will have at his call his two chief political advisers of recent years—Judge Jos. M. Proskauer, who was his chief liaison officer at the Houston convention, and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, campaign publicity director and "right hand man" of the democratic candidate.

Smith also will clear up a few state matters before he departs. Except perhaps for a day or two between campaign trips, he will drop his role as governor of New York state when he leaves Sunday night until after the election. During most of the time between Sunday and Nov. 6, he will be out of the state.

Smith and his party will travel in the private car of his multi-millionaire friend, William F. Kenny, and also will have an observation car.

For the 35 newspaper correspondents who are assigned to cover the tour, the largest number ever to accompany a presidential candidate, and the eight or ten photographers, three compartment sleeping cars have been provided, as well as a club car equipped with showers and a barber shop, a special newspaper workroom for the reporters, with tables and typewriters, and a diner.

The governor's reference library will be housed in another car, where stenographers, typists and mimeograph operators also will work in getting out his extemporaneous speeches for the correspondents.

The train will stop at numerous points other than the six cities in which formal speeches are scheduled. It is shown in an outline of the tour made public in response to requests from cities and towns through which the train will pass. The train, which will come from New York, will leave at 10:50 Sunday night. The schedule follows:

Tuesday, Sept. 18, arrive Omaha, Neb., speech at night.

Thursday, Sept. 20, arrive Oklahoma City, Okla.

Saturday, Sept. 22, arrive Denver, Colo., speech at night.

Monday, Sept. 24, arrive Helena 3 P. M., speech at night.

Wednesday, Sept. 26, arrive North Dakota, 11:30 A. M. Leave Bismarck 1 P. M., arrive Fargo 5 P. M. Leave Fargo 7 P. M.

Thursday, Sept. 27, arrive Minneapolis, Minn., early in the morning, speech at night at St. Paul.

Friday, Sept. 28, leave Minneapolis over the C. M. & St. L. R. R. at 10:30 A. M., arrive Milwaukee, Wis., at 8:30 P. M.

Saturday, Sept. 29, night speech at Milwaukee.

Sunday, Sept. 30, leaving Milwaukee.

Monday, Oct. 1, arrive Rochester, N. Y.

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 10.—A campaign trip to the Pacific coast will be made by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, democratic candidate for vice-president, after completing his present 8,000-mile tour which is to end at Paducah, Ky., Sept. 21.

Itinerary of the western trip has not been issued. The date for his address at Savannah, Ga., will be Sept. 14, it was announced today. This speech has been added to the original Atlantic coast schedule. He will speak at Jacksonville, Sept. 15.

His address at Richmond tonight will be on religious freedom.

HOT CAMPAIGN IN NEW ENGLAND IS ANTICIPATED

MAINE HOLDING FIRST STATE ELECTION OF PRESIDENTIAL YEAR

PROGRAM TO BE DRAWN TO HOLD MOST NORTHEAST SECTION AGAINST DEMOCRATS

By PAUL R. MALLON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 10.—Plans for a hot campaign in New England were taken up today by Herbert Hoover as Maine voters went to their polling booths in the first state election of this presidential year.

POLITICAL LEADERS WATCH RESULT OF THE MAINE VOTE

RETURNS OF NEW ENGLAND STATE ARE CONSIDERED A FAIR BAROMETER

STATE ALMOST ALWAYS REPUBLICAN, STRENGTH OF OPPOSITION WATCHED

Portland, Me., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Political leaders watched today for the result of Maine's state election ballots, the return in Maine in September always being taken as a fair indication of the nation's attitude in November of presidential years.

The state almost invariably is republican, but the index is obtained by estimating the strength of the democratic opposition as strong weak or normal.

State issues, especially that of the exportation of hydraulic power developed in Maine, will play a significant part.

The most important local contests are between William Tudor Gardner, republican, and Edward C. Moran, democrat, for governor, and between Senator Frederick Hale, republican, and Herbert Holmes, democrat, for senator.

Both gubernatorial candidates have expressed themselves independently of their party platforms on the power export question, Gardner favoring limited export while his party plank calls for no export.

Witnesses to the shooting, four young women and two men, who claimed they lived at the hotel, all told different versions of the affair.

Professor Hill, who is 41, won the Nobel prize for medicine in 1922.

The announcement of Hill's supposed discoveries came just as Britain was engaged in a renewal of the recent national discussion of life after death. The subject was brought to the fore in two addresses made yesterday by the two foremost students of spiritualism in England—Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

Lodge, in a scientific sermon at Wellington church in Glasgow, affirmed his belief in life after death and in "one single mind" that controls the universe.

Doyle reaffirmed declaration of communication with the dead, saying "I have been in communication with minds of certain people who have parted from their bodies."

Conan Doyle addressed an audience of 2,000 at the Congress of the International Spiritualist Federation in Queens Hall, London.

Sir Arthur announced that Earl Haig, within three days of his death, had sent him a long message from the spirit world. Its contents, he added, were of interest only to Haig's relatives, but they had declined to say whether they would like to see the message.

Conan Doyle illustrated his lecture with spirit photographs, showing ghosts, fairies and faces appearing in the center of ectoplasmic emanations from mediums.

Itinerary of the western trip has not been issued. The date for his address at Savannah, Ga., will be Sept. 14, it was announced today. FIRST CAMPAIGN TRIP BEGINS SUNDAY NIGHT

DURING PRESENT WEEK HE WILL OUTLINE SIX CAMPAIGN SPEECHES

TO SPEND MUCH OF HIS TIME IN STUDY AT EXECUTIVE MANSION

By THOMAS L. STOKES (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith faces a busy week in preparation for his first campaign trip, beginning next Sunday night, in which he will show himself to the voters in the land beyond the Mississippi river.

The democratic candidate will devote most of his time this week to outlining the six campaign speeches he will make on this first tour, spending much time in his study at the executive mansion—a good deal of it in the late hour nights, as is his custom in work of this sort.

He will have at his call his two chief political advisers of recent years—Judge Jos. M. Proskauer, who was his chief liaison officer at the Houston convention, and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, campaign publicity director and "right hand man" of the democratic candidate.

Smith also will clear up a few state matters before he departs. Except perhaps for a day or two between campaign trips, he will drop his role as governor of New York state when he leaves Sunday night until after the election. During most of the time between Sunday and Nov. 6, he will be out of the state.

Smith and his party will travel in the private car of his multi-millionaire friend, William F. Kenny, and also will have an observation car.

For the 35 newspaper correspondents who are assigned to cover the tour, the largest number ever to accompany a presidential candidate, and the eight or ten photographers, three compartment sleeping cars have been provided, as well as a club car equipped with showers and a barber shop, a special newspaper workroom for the reporters, with tables and typewriters, and a diner.

The governor's reference library will be housed in another car, where stenographers, typists and mimeograph operators also will work in getting out his extemporaneous speeches for the correspondents.

The train will stop at numerous points other than the six cities in which formal speeches are scheduled, it is shown in an outline of the tour made public in response to requests from cities and towns through which the train will pass. The train, which will come from New York, will leave at 10:50 Sunday night. The schedule follows:

Tuesday, Sept. 18, arrive Omaha, Neb., speech at night.

Thursday, Sept. 20, arrive Oklahoma City, Okla.

Saturday, Sept. 22, arrive Denver, Colo., speech at night.

Monday, Sept. 24, arrive Helena 3 P. M., speech at night.

Wednesday, Sept. 26, arrive North Dakota, 11:30 A. M. Leave Bismarck 1 P. M., arrive Fargo 5 P. M. Leave Fargo 7 P. M.

Thursday, Sept. 27, arrive Minneapolis, Minn., early in the morning, speech at night at St. Paul.

Friday, Sept. 28, leave Minneapolis over the C. M. & St. L. R. R. at 10:30 A. M., arrive Milwaukee, Wis., at 8:30 P. M.

Saturday, Sept. 29, night speech at Milwaukee.

Sunday, Sept. 30, leaving Milwaukee.

Monday, Oct. 1, arrive Rochester, N. Y.

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 10.—A campaign trip to the Pacific coast will be made by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, democratic candidate for vice-president, after completing his present 8,000-mile tour which is to end at Paducah, Ky., Sept. 21.

When the cabin monoplane Miss Packard struck high tension wires while making a forced landing recently near Rockford, Ill., it plunged into the Rock River, killing Pilot M. E. Hendley and seriously injuring four passengers. Of the injured, all officials of the Rockford Schacht-Tuck Electric Company, H. H. Tuck, president, and Ray Ives, sales manager, are expected to die. When Hendley was extricated from the submerged plane his neck was found to be broken.

BODY OF SLAIN BODYGUARD IS UNCLAIMED

POLICE OF CHICAGO PERUSE THE NOTEBOOK OF LATE JOSEPH
FERRARO

BELIEVED ONLY CLUE TO SOLU-TION OF CHICAGO GANG-
STER OUTBREAK

Chicago, Sept. 10.—(UP)—The body of Joseph Ferraro, slain bodyguard of Tony Capone, lay unclaimed at the county morgue today while police perused his "notebook" as the only clue to solution of Chicago's latest gangster outbreak.

Ferraro, who was wounded in the attack upon Lombardo in the heart of the loop district Friday afternoon, died here yesterday. He maintained silence to his death, asking only for his notebook.

The notebook, as near as could be learned, contained a list of names and addresses. Police believed it also might hold the solution to the double killing.

Ferraro's address was given as the Hawthorne hotel, in Cicero, one time headquarters of "Scarface Al" Capone, Lombardo's associate. Police reasoned that Capone hardly would allow the body of one of his men to be buried in potter's field, but there had been no word from Capone today.

The body of Lombardo rested in his home, surrounded by friends and relatives. It was understood the funeral will be held tomorrow morning.

Joseph Lolordo, bodyguard of Lombardo, was held by police pending further investigation. An inquest meanwhile was set for late today but it was expected it would be continued.

In attempting to fix responsibility for the murders, police had only the cryptic phrase "another gangster feud," to go on. It is believed that the murders marked a further effort of Joe Aiello to gain the crown held by Capone. There is nothing tangible, however, on which this premise can be based, except Aiello's known enmity for Capone.

Aiello is never in Chicago for any length of time, a fact that is said here to be the only reason for his being alive. If Aiello stays in Chicago for any length of time, it will mean his death. He is keeping on the move, and his enemies do not know where he is.

Open warfare between the Aiello gang and the Capone henchmen would be assured if Aiello took up headquarters here, it is believed.

JOHN COOLIDGE BREAKS DATE TO MEET MISS TRUMBULL

Plainville, Conn., Sept. 10.—(UP)—John Coolidge apparently broke a date to meet Miss Florence Trumbull on her return from Europe.

She arrived in New York aboard the Lapland Sunday and it had been assumed the president's son would meet her. He left the Trumbull home here, however, for an unannounced destination and was not in New York.

Previously announced plans were that Mrs. Trumbull, Florence and Coolidge would join Governor Trumbull at his Moosehead Lake, Maine summer home this week.

New York, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, and reported fiancée of John Coolidge, son of the president, is back at her Connecticut home today after having admitted the following:

1. That she and John have an "understanding" about being engaged.
2. That previous rumors of their betrothal were "premature."
3. That the wedding will not take place before Christmas.
4. That it would be "thrilling" to be married in the White House.

Miss Trumbull returned on the Lapland yesterday from a motor tour of Europe, on which she was accompanied by Miss Esther Trumbull, her cousin; Miss Edna Stauffer, Miss Zoe Warner, and Miss Emily Sloper.

Miss Trumbull is $1.50 richer because John was not at the pier to meet her. She wagered with fellow passengers that he would not be there, although the president's son was reported to be visiting at the Trumbull home.

Mrs. Trumbull, who met her daughter at the pier, left immediately with Florence for Hartford.

"John must work and earn some money before we get married," Miss Trumbull said, when she said goodbye to Capt. H. Harvey, master of the Lapland.

SEEKS DAUGHTER AFTER 30 YEARS

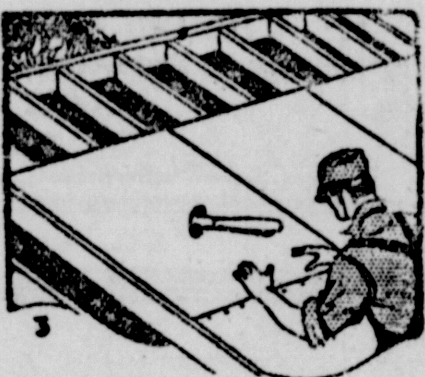

Chicago, Sept. 10.—(UP)—Mrs. H. J. Heise, wife of a police officer in San Diego, arrived here today to seek her daughter, who was given to the care of a Chicago dentist thirty years ago.

Mrs. Heise's name then was Anna Maude Lampman. She was unable to care for her 2-year-old daughter, Vera, and turned the child over to Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Gould. Seventeen years later, Mrs. Lampman came to Chicago and tried to get her daughter.

She and Mrs. Gould quarreled and Mrs. Lampman returned to San Diego, without Vera.

Mrs. Lampman married Heise and in the meantime her daughter has been married twice, the first time to Frank Peskule and the second time to George Wagner.

The Goulds say they have no idea where the daughter is.

HOW REFRIGERATION HAS BUILT THE SOFT DRINK INDUSTRY

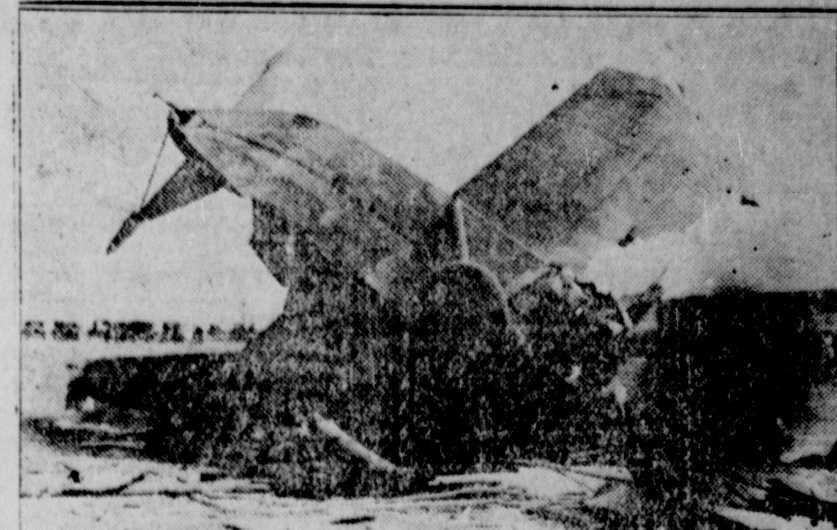

Brainerd Bottling Tells of the Importance of Refrigeration Both in the Manufacturing and Serving of Carbonated Drinks

One of the most important factors in the growth of the soft drink industry is refrigeration, according to J. E. Cibuzar, Brainerd Bottling Works. This is so not merely because a drink naturally tastes better when it's cold, but because refrigeration is absolutely necessary for the protection of the carbonation in the drink.

"Even in mixing and bottling Brainerd Bottling," said Mr. Cibuzar, "we make sure that the water is never more than 46 degrees Fahrenheit at the most, because the carbon dioxide which gives the drink its sparkle and adds so much to its healthfulness, as well as to its appetizing qualities, dislikes warm water so much that it will escape from it into the air at every opportunity. In bottling Brainerd Bottling Beverages, bottles are filled and sealed automatically.

"The same thing is true in the serving of Brainerd Bottling Beverages. Aside from the fact that it tastes better cold, the low temperature of the drink locks the carbonation in and you get the full benefit of its healthful, refreshing qualities. That's why we always insist that Brainerd Bottling Beverages be served just as cold as possible."

This is the Week

To Can Yakima Elberta Peaches

In the next few days shipments of Yakima Elbertas will be at their peak, and this is the week to can them. Never, in any recent year, have peaches been so plentiful nor canning inducements so great. Nor have these ruddy, blushing, juicy-sweet Elbertas ever been finer. If you haven't already put them up for next winter's enjoyment, you should do it this week. After that, shipments will decline. You'll find the medium-sized peaches best and most economical for canning—slice the big ones for eating.

The J. H. Hale is another splendid canning and eating peach just coming into quantity production in the Yakima Valley. The supply is rather limited.

YAKIMA ELBERTA PEACHES

The Yakima Valley (pronounced Yik-mi), a vast garden 125 miles long in the State of Washington, is noted all over the world for the splendid quality of its fruit, its well-kept orchards and its progressiveness.

Given a rich, fertile, volcanic ash soil and ideal climatic conditions, Yakima Valley growers have been eminently successful, due to their methods of intensive horticulture, irrigation and their modern methods of handling fruit and preparing it for market.

"TRULY GREAT"

THE Rock County Herald quotes the following tribute to Herbert Hoover written by Herman Bernstein, internationally noted author:

"The United States has had three truly great presidents who impressed themselves upon the world for all time—Washington, Lincoln and Wilson. I believe that Herbert Hoover is ideally equipped by his extraordinary personality, experience and achievements to be the fourth great American president. He is now the foremost internationally-minded American who has served America with deep and farsighted understanding and who has also made America beloved in various parts of the world, for there is hardly a nation that has not been aided by Herbert Hoover in behalf of America.

"Mr. Hoover is one of the very rare constructive thinkers along political and economical lines today, and one of America's best informed statesmen on world problems which have a vital bearing on this country. His genius for practical solution of intricate problems is sure to advance the moral progress and material welfare of the United States, and as president he will undoubtedly raise American prestige and moral influence for universal peace, international understanding and good will.

"Mr. Hoover is unquestionably America's most popular hero abroad. He has saved millions of human beings, through his gigantic relief work during the war and after the armistice. He has saved millions of children in the countries of the Allies as well as of the Central Powers.

"It was Mr. Hoover's vision and imagination, his Yankee grit and fearlessness, his vast knowledge of the world and of men, and, above all, his genius for organization, that saved the world from a still greater catastrophe than the World war.

"While Europe was a madhouse of slaughter, and the passions of hate were unchained, he kept performing his great work for humanity—the only bright and redeeming feature of the war.

"Mr. Hoover interpreted the heart of America to the world. He translated the idealism of America into humanitarian service by not only saving the starving populations of Europe during the world's greatest catastrophe but also by checking the wave of anarchy and unbridled revolt that threatened civilization and the welfare of coming generations.

"Mr. Hoover is a truly modest man. He is embarrassed when his own achievements are mentioned in his presence. He brushes all praise aside with the remark that his own part in the work is not of importance—it is the work itself that matters. He refuses to speak of his own role in these achievements."

URGES NECESSITY OF CAUTION

Now that most of the schools in Crow Wing county are in full swing, with others opening in a week or two, it is well for car-owners, parents and teachers to give a thought to the safety of school children.

Car owners should be careful in passing schools or in driving where children are going to or from school. A state law specifically requires that they slow down when passing a school during the hours when children are coming or going, or at recess time.

Parents and teachers can help by urging children not to play on motor-traveled roads or streets, to be careful in crossing, and to walk on the left side when walking on highways.

Children should also be cautioned against soliciting rides from strangers. The traffic law makes it a misdemeanor to solicit rides while standing in the traveled portion of any thoroughfare.

They should also be cautioned against hitching or jumping on or into any moving vehicle, or getting into any vehicle without the owner's consent. Violation of any of these rules frequently leads to accidents.

MANY WENT FISHING

MOST of the world went fishing when it arrived in Crow Wing county. According to figures compiled by the county auditor, the sale of fishing licenses this season was a heavy one.

Family fishing licenses issued numbered 500; individual 3,200; non-resident 4,500. Computing that each one licensed caught a fish and displaced half a pint of water landing him, the amount of water lifted from lake and river amounted to the stupendous figure of 500 gallons. Each cast required a fishpole, thus making a forest of over 8,200 poles or rods.

If each one used a minnow two and a half inches in length it would make a line of minnows, laid end to end stretching almost five city blocks plus street intervening. It would be interesting to note just how many fish these ambitious anglers caught. Also it would be of interest to compile and catalog the excuses and alibis offered when the fishermen returned to camp without a fish, or to compute also the extent of the catch which got away.

MAILING PROPAGANDA

THE money spent each day in the mailing of propaganda to the newspapers of the country would pay the public debt in a week's time, if the amount we get each day is any criterion, says the Little Falls Daily Transcript. Without the least exaggeration, we open and dump into the waste basket each day from twenty to thirty pieces of mail, most of which carry first class postage. And in each and every envelope is a plea for free space for an article that "will surely be of interest to your readers," or by its insertion "you will be doing a wonderful work for humanity." Bosh.

Each and every sender is working for No. 1. So are we, so that is the reason we dump this rubbish into the waste basket, then to the bailer and sell the propaganda to the waste paper man at so much per hundred pounds.

MALICIOUS BUNK

THERE are two lines of malicious bunk used in this campaign. One is that the Republican candidate would be ruled by England and the other is that the Democratic candidate would take orders from Rome. Why is it that in a political campaign many people seem to give their common sense and reason a vacation?—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

ALL Brainerd wonders if Joe Bush will be eligible to play in the world series if the Athletics win the pennant. It all depends on whether Joe is a regular player or whether he is acting as a coach.

Kansan Tells of Early Days
On West Branch Farm
Where Hoover Was Born

E. D. King Recalls Life in Quaint Quaker Settlement in Iowa—Lived With Candidate's Family.

E. D. King, 1216 Richmond Street, Kansas City, Kansas, has many interesting incidents to relate about the Hoover family, having himself lived in the Hoover home in West Branch, Iowa, at the time Herbert Hoover was born.

Mr. King was working for Herbert's father in the blacksmith shop at the time. It was he who went for the doctor when Herbert was born. Mr. King ate his meals with the Hoover family. West Branch was at that time a town of about 400 population. It had two blacksmith shops, one hotel, a livery stable, four general stores, and a restaurant. It is located in Cedar County, where broad Quaker hats and poke bonnets were worn for almost a generation. Cedar county was on the western edge of the original Black Hawk Purchase which was the nucleus of the State of Iowa. Here farms bordered rougher land of hill and ravine.

According to Mr. King, Hoover was a respected name in Iowa. The family originated in Holland, but has been represented in the United States for nearly two centuries. Andrew Hoover and two brothers, about 1740, obtained land in the uplands of Maryland. Later Andrew's son, John, joined a group of Quakers and moved to the Western Reserve in Ohio.

It was in 1853 that the son of John, Jesse Hoover, Rebecca, his wife, and Eli, their son, and his three children moved farther West, helping to found the town of West Branch. The King family settled there the same year, and both families lived in log cabins for a while, later building better houses. Buffalo and deer were quite common in the vicinity at that time.

Herbert Hoover was only six years old when his father died. His mother did sewing and other kinds of work to support her children. She also took a prominent part in Quaker meetings and was invited to speak in other towns and cities. After she died Herbert and the two other children were cared for by relatives. Herbert went to live with his Uncle Allan and Aunt Millie. This Aunt Millie was, before her marriage, Myra Gifford, a first cousin of Mr. King.

Mr. King left West Branch to go on a farm in western Iowa. He later farmed in Oskaloosa, Kansas. In 1893 he came to Kansas City where he was engaged in the real estate business for some time. He is now employed in a furniture store in Kansas City, Kansas.

Vrooman Flays Tammany Hall
For Attempt to Play "Con"
Game on Nation's FarmersEconomic Expert and Official Under Wilson
Says Houston Convention Platform
Fools Nobody

Playing Tammany Hall for attempting to play a "con" game on the farmers of the nation, Carl S. Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture under President Wilson, declares that intelligent farmers throughout the country have received no comfort from the agricultural plank in the platform of the Democratic convention.

"The Tammany Hall campaign idea seems to be based on the theory that it can sell political gold brick promises to a bunch of hayseeds out West," Mr. Vrooman said. "I am confident the farmers of the nation will not fall for this latest 'con' game from 'The Sidewalks of New York.'"

He charged Tammany with being Democratic in name only and said that "it is essentially mercenary and parasitic. It double-crossed Wilson, Cox, and Davis."

"One of Tammany's first acts was of subterfuge and double dealing. The agricultural plank in the Houston platform was a masterpiece of ambiguity, so framed as to admit of one interpretation in the East and another in the West and South."

"A few days after a conference with Peck (George N. Peck, of Moline, Ill.), Governor Smith introduced the equalization fee principle, but the next day he put out a statement flatly repudiating the equalization fee itself."

"Intelligent farmers have got no comfort from the agricultural plank in the Houston platform. It professes platonic friendship for the principle of the equalization fee, without pledging the party or the candidate to the McNary-Hauger bill or to any other bill or plan of real benefit to the farmer."

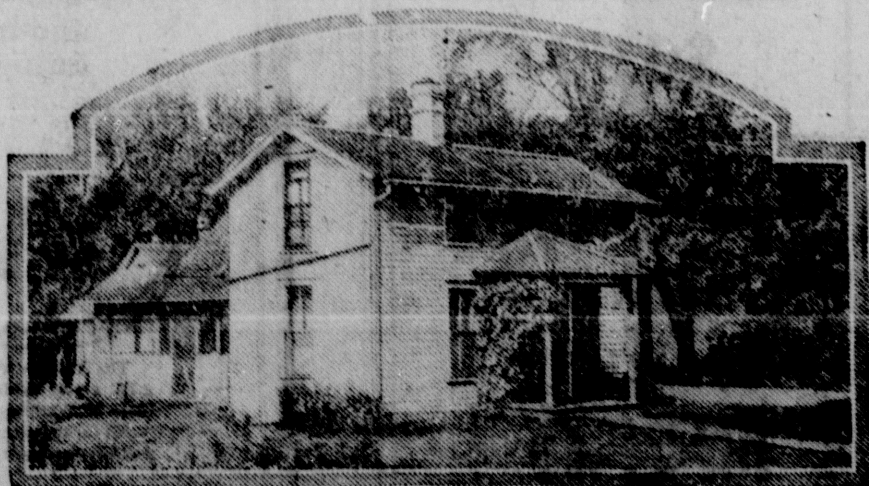

Mr. Vrooman has been active in behalf of the "dirt farmers" in the Democratic party. He drafted and introduced the first farm relief bill in Congress in 1921.

Carl Vrooman

Mr. Vrooman, an expert on economic subjects, and a writer of note, farms 4300 acres of land near his home in Bloomington, Ill. In addition to his service of five years as assistant secretary of agriculture, he served on the agricultural war mission to Europe.

This small cottage at West Branch, Iowa, where Herbert Hoover was born, has emerged from humble obscurity to become one of the historic shrines of the State. It was even smaller at the time of the birth of Republican presidential candidate. Much of the front has been added since he left to go to work on his uncle's farm after his father's death.

"Shop" is scarcely the word to say—she's so assured and jaunty about it. You love to go along. Her clothes are quite the thing as she swings expectantly down the street. "Yes, this is the right cold cream," selecting the simplest of two jars—the white, fluffy insides looking alike, equally fragrant. "TRULY GREAT"

THE Rock County Herald quotes the following tribute to Herbert Hoover written by Herman Bernstein, internationally noted author:

"The United States has had three truly great presidents who impressed themselves upon the world for all time—Washington, Lincoln and Wilson. I believe that Herbert Hoover is ideally equipped by his extraordinary personality, experience and achievements to be the fourth great American president. He is now the foremost internationally-minded American who has served America with deep and farsighted understanding and who has also made America beloved in various parts of the world, for there is hardly a nation that has not been aided by Herbert Hoover in behalf of America.

"Mr. Hoover is one of the very rare constructive thinkers along political and economical lines today, and one of America's best informed statesmen on world problems which have a vital bearing on this country. His genius for practical solution of intricate problems is sure to advance the moral progress and material welfare of the United States, and as president he will undoubtedly raise American prestige and moral influence for universal peace, international understanding and good will.

"Mr. Hoover is unquestionably America's most popular hero abroad. He has saved millions of human beings, through his gigantic relief work during the war and after the armistice. He has saved millions of children in the countries of the Allies as well as of the Central Powers.

"It was Mr. Hoover's vision and imagination, his Yankee grit and fearlessness, his vast knowledge of the world and of men, and, above all, his genius for organization, that saved the world from a still greater catastrophe than the World war.

"While Europe was a madhouse of slaughter, and the passions of hate were unchained, he kept performing his great work for humanity—the only bright and redeeming feature of the war.

"Mr. Hoover interpreted the heart of America to the world. He translated the idealism of America into humanitarian service by not only saving the starving populations of Europe during the world's greatest catastrophe but also by checking the wave of anarchy and unbridled revolt that threatened civilization and the welfare of coming generations.

"Mr. Hoover is a truly modest man. He is embarrassed when his own achievements are mentioned in his presence. He brushes all praise aside with the remark that his own part in the work is not of importance—it is the work itself that matters. He refuses to speak of his own role in these achievements."

URGES NECESSITY OF CAUTION

Now that most of the schools in Crow Wing county are in full swing, with others opening in a week or two, it is well for car-owners, parents and teachers to give a thought to the safety of school children.

Car owners should be careful in passing schools or in driving where children are going to or from school. A state law specifically requires that they slow down when passing a school during the hours when children are coming or going, or at recess time.

Parents and teachers can help by urging children not to play on motor-traveled roads or streets, to be careful in crossing, and to walk on the left side when walking on highways.

Children should also be cautioned against soliciting rides from strangers. The traffic law makes it a misdemeanor to solicit rides while standing in the traveled portion of any thoroughfare.

They should also be cautioned against hitching or jumping on or into any moving vehicle, or getting into any vehicle without the owner's consent. Violation of any of these rules frequently leads to accidents.

MANY WENT FISHING

MOST of the world went fishing when it arrived in Crow Wing county. According to figures compiled by the county auditor, the sale of fishing licenses this season was a heavy one.

NEW YORK YANKEES REGAIN FIRST PLACE ON SUNDAY

NOW HAVE GAME AND HALF LEAD OVER ATHLETICS

CONNIE MACK'S GREAT MACHINE AGAIN FACES HARD TASK

CROWD OF 85,065 SEES YANKEES DEFEAT MACKMEN 5 TO 0 AND 7 TO 3

New York, Sept. 10.—(UP)—The New York Yankees are back in first place today with a game and a half lead over the Philadelphia Athletics and Connie Mack's great baseball machine again faces the task of overhauling the world champions.

The team which sloughed off a 13½ game lead in the last two months came back with a vengeance yesterday and defeated the Athletics twice, 5 to 0 and 7 to 3, in the most important double-header in the recent history of baseball. A record crowd of 85,065 persons saw the games.

The double defeat was a crushing blow to the Athletics and the Mackmen may not be able to gather their forces out of the wreckage to stage another pennant drive. The long, hard haul up the American League ladder in the past two months has taken a toll from the A's.

Connie Mack used up four of his pitching aces yesterday in an attempt to stop the Yanks, and they all failed him. John Pichs blew up after pitching five scoreless innings in the first game. Rube Walberg collapsed in the second game and Osie Oswalt and Ed Rommel were taken out after relief duty.

Today was an off day for both teams, but the series will be resumed Tuesday and completed Wednesday, after which both teams head west to end the season on the road.

The Yankees have their old confidence back and may end the American League race by crushing the A's in the two remaining games of the present series. If the Yanks win Tuesday and Wednesday, they will go west with a 3½ game lead which at this stage of the race would virtually clinch the pennant.

Odd Forms of Prayer for Parching Fields

Many countries hold odd ceremonies to end drought. The Chinese take their dragon god around in a procession, and beat him soundly when he ignores their prayers for rain. The Bantus of Delagoa bay sing songs at their dried-up wells and make moths around the parched fields. In Greece they send children marching round all the wells and springs, under the leadership of a girl adorned with flowers, who sings at each halting place. The same custom prevails in Yugo-Slavia, where a little girl called the Dodota is clothed from head to foot in grass and flowers, and leads her companions through their native village, stopping at each house, so that the housewife may pour a pail of water over her, and singing the good news that the rain has come, even though it is usually far away.

"Traveling Stones"

"Traveling stones," from the size of a pea to 6 inches in diameter, are found in Nevada. When distributed upon a floor or other level surface within 2 or 3 feet of one another they immediately began to travel onward toward a common center, and there he huddled like a clutch of eggs in a nest.

A single stone, removed to a distance of 3½ feet, upon being released, at once started with a wonderful and somewhat comical celerity to join its fellows.

These queer stones are found in a region that is comparatively level and little more than bare rock. Scattered over this barren region are little basins, from a few feet to a rod or two in diameter, and it is in the bottom of these that the rolling stones are found.

The cause for the strange conduct of these stones is doubtless to be found in the material of which they are composed, which appears to be lodestone or magnetic iron ore.

Natural Query

The stroller happened to be present one evening when a young hopeful of six years returned home after a hard day's play and received a quarter left by his grandmother, who had called to see him, but who, fearing the night air, as grandmothers do, had had to leave before his return.

The boy had heard grown persons talk about "when the old lady is gone Junior will get quite a sum," and always when she came to see him she had placed a dime in the chubby spendthrift hand.

He stood with the quarter almost covering his palm, then looking up with great mysterious eyes, asked in awed tones:

"Is she died?"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

It is probable that the sewing machine was introduced into England by Thomas Saint, who made such a machine and had it patented on July 17, 1790.

BOBBY JONES AMONG FIRST TO START PLAY

MONARCH OF AMATEUR GOLF IS FAVORED TO RETAIN TITLE

ALREADY HAS WON IT 3 TIMES IN THE PAST 4 YEARS

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

Braeburn Country Club, West Newton, Mass., Sept. 10.—Down the long, velvety first fairway of the Braeburn course, the golfing host which has come in quest of the national amateur championship, set out today to battle with par in the first of two medal qualifying rounds. Among the first of the field of 144 to start out was the corpulent, serious minded young monarch of amateur golf, Robert T. Jones, Jr., favored to retain the title he already has won three times in the past four years.

Hopeful of overthrowing the Atlanta dynasty, there went along with King Bobby a mighty array of dukes of the drivers, barons of the brassie and knights of the niblick.

An international aspect was lent to the qualifying play by the presence of eight members of the recently vanquished British Walker Cup team, anxious to vindicate themselves in the eyes of their countrymen. There was also in the field a strong representation of Canadian golfers, led by Ross Somerville.

Of the players who stood in the way of Bobby Jones' acquisition of his fourth amateur title, the most prominent are: George Von Elm, Jess Sweetser, Jesse Guilford and Francis Ouimet, all former champions, and all familiar with the Braeburn course.

Von Elm, the former caddy who now is one of amateur golf's leading young bond salesmen, is second choice to Jones in the betting. The Californian has shown nothing remarkable at Braeburn as yet, but his golf this summer has been of the highest order. George has had considerable success since he qualified for his first amateur championship in 1921.

Braeburn was at its brightest and best for the championship, the club's pride in its course being evidenced by the most thorough arrangements for the handling of the tournament.

Braeburn Country Club, West Newton, Mass., Sept. 10.—Fighting trouble all the way around the picturesque and difficult championship course, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, defending his amateur title, turned in a card of 77 today for his first qualifying round.

Nearly all the early starters in the field of 144 which set out under a blazing September sun were in difficulty today, and high scores, testifying to the terrors of Braeburn, were in order.

Francis Ouimet, former amateur and open champion, who, on his showing against the British at Wheaton, looked a strong contender for this year's title, took a 39-39—78 for his first qualifying round. Maurice McCarthy, Jr., of Old Flatbush, had 40-39—79.

From early scores and the performance of such stalwarts as Jones, Ouimet and McCarthy, it began to look as though two rounds of 80 would put a player safely within the charmed circles of 32 which will start match play Wednesday.

Braeburn Country Club, West Newton, Mass., Sept. 10.—Harrison R. "Jimmy" Johnston of the White Bear Yacht Club, turned in a sparkling round of 34-37—71 to better par and take the lead over the field in the first qualifying round at Braeburn today.

The Minneapolis golfer, who played so brilliantly in leading the field for the first two rounds in the national open at Oakmont, was the first golfer in the present championship to break par for the difficult Braeburn course. Johnston's card: Out 544 353 424—34 In 443 564 434—37—71

Don Moe of Alderwood, Ore., in the best of the early cards, a 74, was two strokes over par while John B. Ryerson, a dark horse from Onwentsia, had 37-38—75.

Eustace Story of the British Walker team, had 41-38—79. Dr. William Tweedie, who captained the British Walker cup team, and who is a former British amateur champion, had 43-37—80.

Ancients Stored Wine in Earthenware Jars

The vessels chiefly used in the early days for holding wine were invariably the skins of animals. These skins were formed into crude bags and the seams were cemented with pitch or resin. Such were the wineskins successfully employed by the wily Gibeonites in their negotiations with Joshua. These were succeeded by the earthenware jars known as amphorae, the size and shape of which are obviously modeled on the primitive wineskin. The amphorae was glazed inside and not outside, the glazing being a resinous composition evidently copied from that used for wineskins. Its capacity was about three gallons, and its aperture was at the thick end or top, unlike the wineskin, which was filled and emptied at the thin end or bottom. This simple but thoroughly practical vessel for containing wine remained in use without change for many centuries in Egypt, Greece and Rome. It was stored by thrusting the small end into the cellar floor of dry sand. When the first tier was completed it was covered up deeply with more dry sand, another tier of amphorae was placed above it, also smothered in sand, and there it was left for years to mature at an even temperature.

Time Has Swallowed Up Ancient Marvels

Of the seven wonders of the ancient world the only satisfactory survival is the first group, the pyramids and the great sphinx. The foundation and many fragments of the mausoleum have been disclosed by modern excavation; the structure was destroyed by an earthquake. Mounds indicating the position of the walls and gardens of Babylon have also been identified.

The Colossus, composed of brass cast in pieces, was overthrown by an earthquake in 223 B. C. The pieces lay there for many centuries, until the Turks took Rhodes. They sold the brass to a merchant, who is said to have employed 300 camels to carry it away.

The temple of Diana was burned in 356 B. C., by Erostatus, an obscure individual who thought thus to make himself famous. It was rebuilt in a less pretentious manner, and survived until the coming of the Goths in A. D. 253. Barbarian invaders are thought to have destroyed also the Olympian Jove and the pharos of Alexandria.

URBAN SHOCKER DIES AFTER ILLNESS

HIS LAST THOUGHTS WERE ON HIS FORMER TEAMMATES' PENNANT BATTLE

Denver, Colo., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Urban Shocker, famous spitball pitcher for the New York Yankees, lost his long battle with a lingering illness and died here Sunday. Almost his last thoughts were on his former teammates' battles for a pennant.

Shocker, whose pitching record in the American League over a period of eleven years was 184 games won and 113 lost, died of athletic heart. He had been fighting the illness here for months and last week started sinking.

Davis Pitches 3 Exhibition Matches

Kansas City, Sept. 10.—C. C. Davis, of Columbus, O., world champion horseshoe pitcher, pitched three exhibition matches here Sunday as a feature of the Kansas City tournament and defeated Billy Creek, Independence, Mo., 50 to 10; Rodney Knight, Kansas City, 50 to 18, and Roy McClain, Kansas City, 50 to 30.

And Going Strong

"Uncle" Urban Shocker, now in his fifteenth year on the Chicago White Sox, who recently celebrated his fortieth birthday and announced that he felt in as good form as ever. His record this season testifies to the honesty of his feelings, with ten games won and eight lost. The fact is, he leads the Sox pitching staff, youngsters included.

Watching the Scoreboard

(By United Press)
Yesterday's Hero—Bob Mense whose home run in the eighth inning of the second game gave the Yankees a 7 to 3 victory over Philadelphia. The Yankees had won the first game 5 to 0 through the excellent pitching of George Phipps who permitted the A's nine hits but kept them safely scattered.

Washington and Boston divided a double-header, the Red Sox winning the first game 3 to 2 and Washington winning the second 5 to 3.

The St. Louis Browns came from behind in the ninth inning, scored four runs, and defeated Detroit 8 to 6.

Metzler, a pinch hitter, hit a home run in the ninth inning to start a rally that gave the Chicago White Sox eight runs. They defeated Cleveland 10 to 1.

An overflow crowd in Chicago watched Guy Bush give the Cincinnati Reds only two hits while the Cubs were winning 2 to 0. The crowd was estimated at 46,000.

Wally Schang out of Game

Detroit, Sept. 10.—Wally Schang, St. Louis American League catcher, will be out of the game the remainder of the season, physicians announced after an X-ray examination of his ankle. The ankle was fractured when Schang slid into the home plate in the ninth inning of Sunday's game.

Those Famous Sewells

JOEY SEWELL

By QUIN HALL

THE Sewell family is doing quite a little toward showing Roger Peckinpaugh a good time during his first year as manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Between Luke, who does a lot of backstopping for the Redskins, and Joey, who is especially active around the short infield, the two Sewell boys are doing everything in their power to make Peck's stay in Cleveland a pleasant one.

And when we murmur that Joey is especially active we mean especially active—just that.

Because when it comes to toiling Joey is a pretty consistent performer. In fact Joey has played almost 900 games in a row without asking for a day off or anything and he is out to beat the record of Deacon Scott who shortstopped for a straight run of 1,307 games with the Red Sox and the Yankees—and that's a lot of games to play consecutively on any man's ball club. Joey hasn't played through every game he has started but he's been working right straight through in most of them and has been at it since 1922.

Sewell will doubtless encounter more difficulty in making the grade than the Deacon because Joey rarely strikes out, is a keen swatter of the apple, and is consequently fairly busy in his rest periods. The Clevelanders hits consistently over the 300 mark and makes few errors in the field.

Both of the brothers have had all of their professional baseball experience right in Cleveland, Joey taking over Ray Chapman's spot right in the center of a busy season with only the training he had at the University of Alabama to back him up. That was in 1920, the year the Indians won the American League pennant and came on to whip Brooklyn in the World's Series.

A few years later Luke, the catcher, finished with his schooling at Alabama and followed Joey's footsteps, landing a berth at Cleveland where he has been hiding behind a catcher's mask ever since.

While Luke isn't quite as fancy with the mallet as Joey he gets in enough timely raps to make him highly valuable as a regular fixture and he works in the major portion of the games throughout the season. Luke is a smart backstop and handles himself with lots of pepper back of the platter. In passing it might be interesting to note that the University of Alabama has sent a lot of important baseball material into the big leagues and the scouts of several of the clubs keep a watchful eye on the youngsters there.

But, getting back once more to the ambition of Joey to break Scott's record. It's quite an ambition. No slight indisposition is going to keep Sewell out of any game and his teammates are all pulling for the long string of consecutive games. The Deacon, who is still shortstopping around, doesn't think the Indian will be able to turn the trick. Scott knows that it isn't such a soft assignment.

But Joey feels confident that he will do it. If he plays through the season he will reach the 933 mark. That leaves him only 370 games to go to beat the mark hung up by Scott.

And 370 games is over two more seasons of regular playing. Considering it in that light it seems a right smart lot of chores to look forward to, but, after all, it's not so bad when he's already been at it steady since his streak started in 1922.

NEW YORK YANKEES REGAIN FIRST PLACE ON SUNDAY

NOW HAVE GAME AND HALF LEAD OVER ATHLETICS

CONNIE MACK'S GREAT MACHINE AGAIN FACES HARD TASK

CROWD OF 85,065 SEES YANKEES DEFEAT MACKMEN 5 TO 0 AND 7 TO 3

New York, Sept. 10.—(UP)—The New York Yankees are back in first place today with a game and a half lead over the Philadelphia Athletics and Connie Mack's great baseball machine again faces the task of overhauling the world champions.

The team which sloughed off a 13½ game lead in the last two months came back with a vengeance yesterday and defeated the Athletics twice, 5 to 0 and 7 to 3, in the most important double-header in the recent history of baseball. A record crowd of 85,065 persons saw the games.

The double defeat was a crushing blow to the Athletics and the Mackmen may not be able to gather their forces out of the wreckage to stage another pennant drive. The long, hard haul up the American League ladder in the past two months has taken a toll from the A's.

Connie Mack used up four of his pitching aces yesterday in an attempt to stop the Yanks, and they all failed him. John Pits blew up after pitching five scoreless innings in the first game. Rube Walberg collapsed in the second game and Osie Oswall and Ed Rommel were taken out after relief duty.

Today was an off day for both teams, but the series will be resumed Tuesday and completed Wednesday, after which both teams head west to end the season on the road.

The Yankees have their old confidence back and may end the American League race by crushing the A's in the two remaining games of the present series. If the Yanks win Tuesday and Wednesday, they will go west with a 3½ game lead which at this stage of the race would virtually clinch the pennant.

Ancients Stored Wine in Earthenware Jars

The vessels chiefly used in the early days for holding wine were invariably the skins of animals. These skins were formed into crude bags and the seams were cemented with pitch or resin. Such were the wineskins successfully employed by the wily Gibeonites in their negotiations with Joshua. These were succeeded by the earthenware jars known as amphorae, the size and shape of which are obviously modeled on the primitive wineskin. The amphorae was glazed inside and not outside, the glazing being a resinous composition evidently copied from that used for wineskins. Its capacity was about three gallons, and its aperture was at the thick end or top, unlike the wineskin, which was filled and emptied at the thin end or bottom. This simple but thoroughly practical vessel for containing wine remained in use without change for many centuries in Egypt, Greece and Rome. It was stored by thrusting the small end into the cellar floor of dry sand. When the first tier was completed it was covered up deeply with more dry sand, another tier of amphorae was placed above it, also smothered in sand, and there it was left for years to mature at an even temperature.

Time Has Swallowed Up Ancient Marvels

Of the seven wonders of the ancient world the only satisfactory survival is the first group, the pyramids and the great sphinx. The foundation and many fragments of the mausoleum have been disclosed by modern excavation; the structure was destroyed by an earthquake. Mounds indicating the position of the walls and gardens of Babylon have also been identified. The Colossus, composed of brass cast in pieces, was overthrown by an earthquake in 224 B. C. The pieces lay there for many centuries, until the Turks took Rhodes. They sold the brass to a merchant, who is said to have employed 300 camels to carry it away.

The temple of Diana was burned in 356 B. C., by Erostatus, an obscure individual who thought thus to make himself famous. It was rebuilt in a less pretentious manner, and survived until the coming of the Goths in A. D. 253. Barbarian invaders are thought to have destroyed also the olympian Jove and the pharos of Alexandria.

URBAN SHOCKER DIES AFTER ILLNESS

HIS LAST THOUGHTS WERE ON HIS FORMER TEAMMATES' PENNANT BATTLE

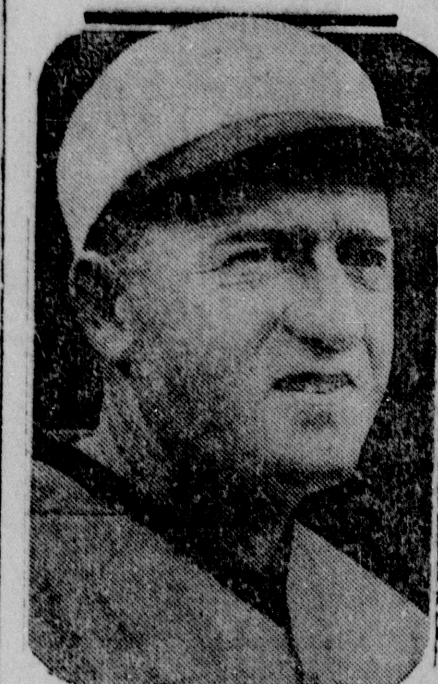

Denver, Colo., Sept. 10.—(UP)—Urban Shocker, famous spitball pitcher for the New York Yankees, lost his long battle with a lingering illness and died here Sunday. Almost his last thoughts were on his former teammates' battles for a pennant.

Shocker, whose pitching record in the American League over a period of eleven years was 184 games won and 113 lost, died of athletic heart. He had been fighting the illness here for months and last week started sinking.

Davis Pitches 3 Exhibition Matches

Kansas City, Sept. 10.—C. C. Davis, of Columbus, O., world champion horseshoe pitcher, pitched three exhibition matches here Sunday as a feature of the Kansas City tournament and defeated Billy Creek, Independence, Mo., 50 to 10; Rodney Knight, Kansas City, 50 to 18, and Roy McClain, Kansas City, 50 to 30, included.

And Going Strong

"Uncle" Urban Faber, now in his fifteenth year on the Chicago White Sox, who recently celebrated his fortieth birthday and announced that he felt in as good form as ever. His record this season testifies to the honesty of his feelings, with ten games won and eight lost. The fact is, he leads the Sox pitching staff, youngsters included.

Watching the Scoreboard

(By United Press)

Yesterday's Hero—Bob Meusel whose home run in the eighth inning of the second game gave the Yankees a 7 to 3 victory over Philadelphia. The Yankees had won the first game 5 to 0 through the excellent pitching of George Pipgras who permitted the A's nine hits but kept them safely scattered.

Washington and Boston divided a double-header, the Red Sox winning the first game 3 to 2 and Washington winning the second 5 to 3.

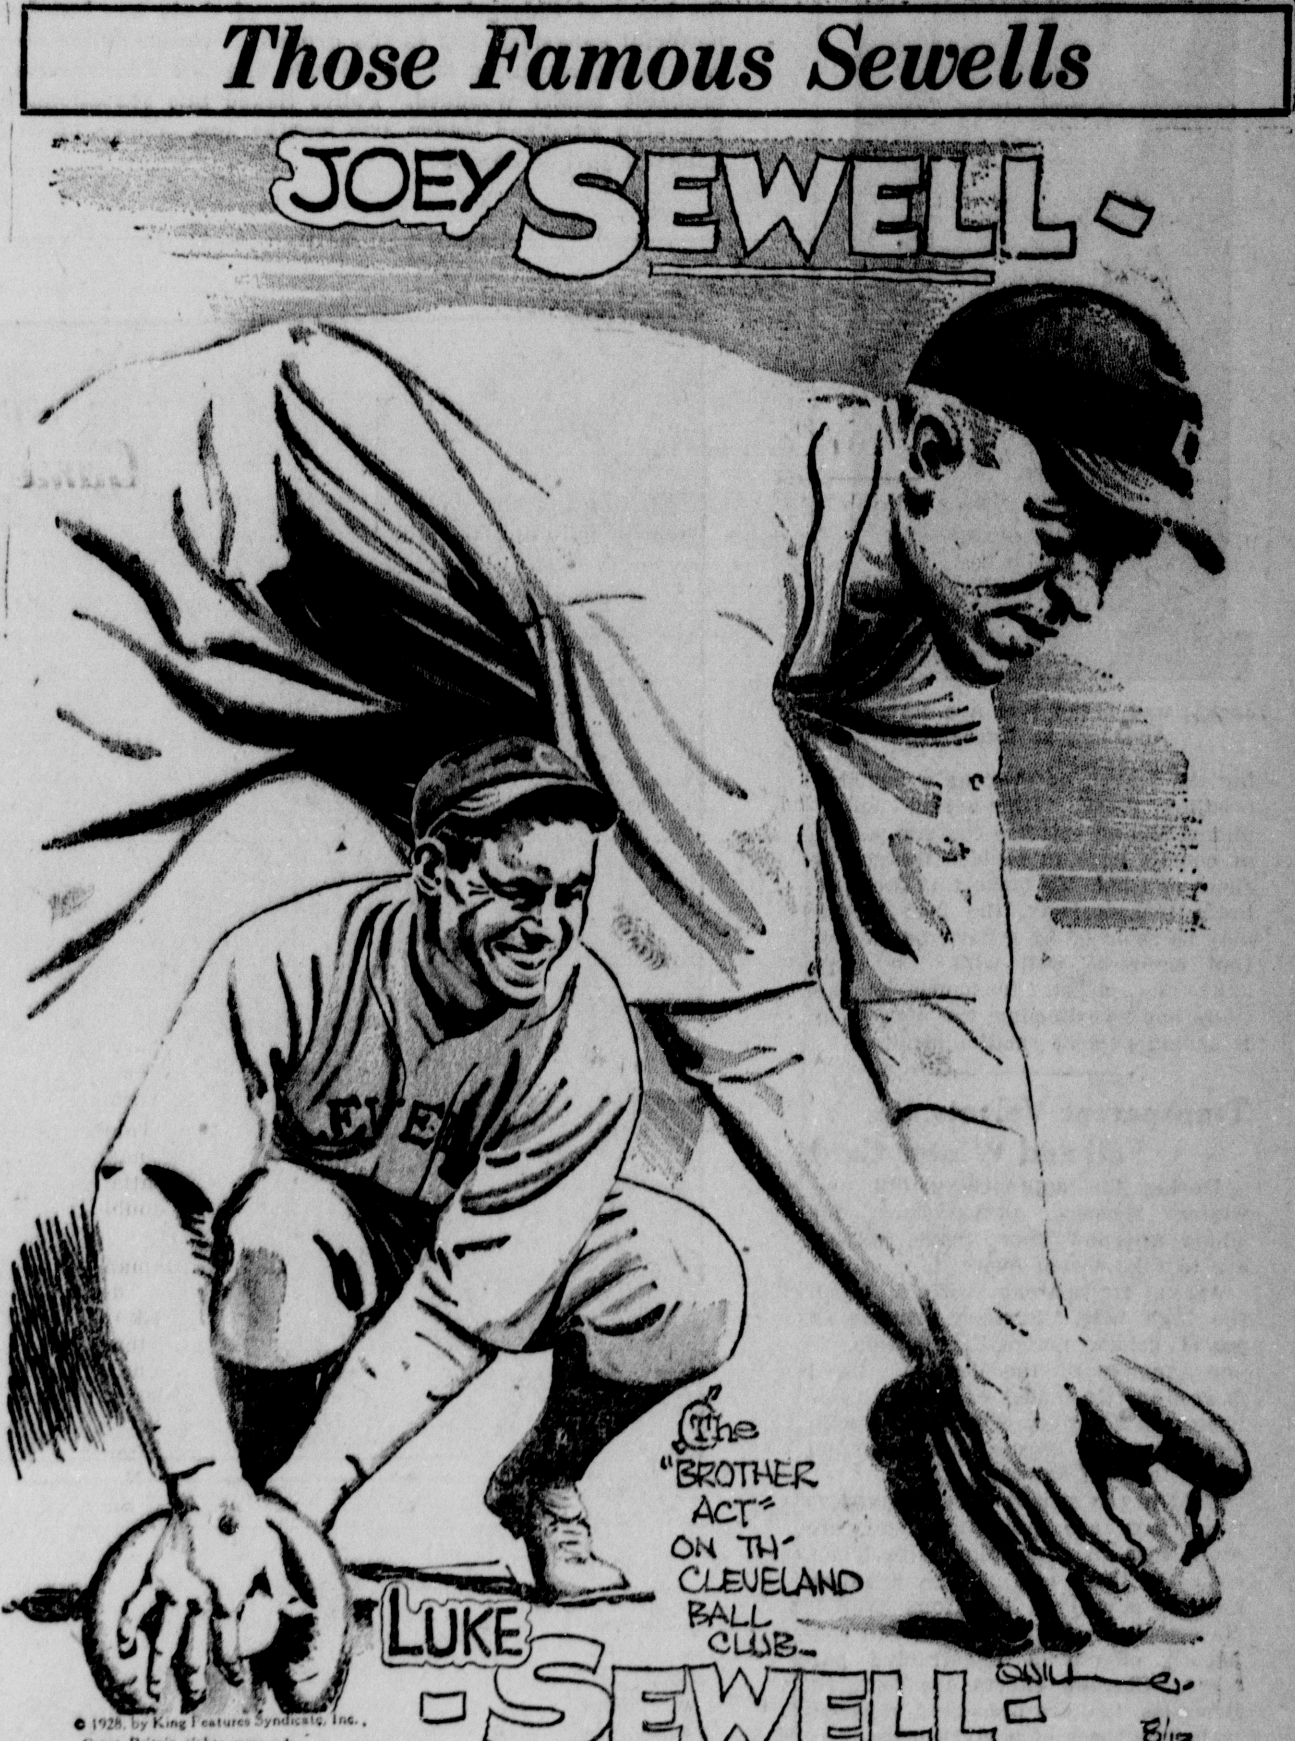

The St. Louis Browns came from behind in the ninth inning, scored four runs, and defeated Detroit 8 to 6.

Metzler, a pinch hitter, hit a home run in the ninth inning to start a rally that gave the Chicago White Sox eight runs. They defeated Cleveland 10 to 1.

An overflow crowd in Chicago watched Guy Bush give the Cincinnati Reds only two hits while the Cubs were winning 2 to 0. The crowd was estimated at 46,000.

Wally Schang out of Game

Detroit, Sept. 10.—Wally Schang, St. Louis American League catcher, will be out of the game the remainder of the season, physicians announced after an X-ray examination of his ankle. The ankle was fractured when Schang slid into the home plate in the ninth inning of Sunday's game.

more difficulty in making the grade than the Deacon because Joey rarely strikes out, is a keen swatter of the apple, and is consequently fairly busy in his rest periods. The Cleveland hits consistently over the 300 mark and makes few errors in the field. Both of the brothers have had all of their professional baseball experience right in Cleveland, Joey taking over Ray Chapman's spot right in the center of a busy season with only the training he had at the University of Alabama to back him up. That was in 1920, the year the Indians won the American League pennant and came on to whip Brooklyn in the World's Series.

A few years later Luke, the catcher, finished with his schooling at Alabama and followed Joey's footsteps, landing a berth at Cleveland where he has been hiding behind a catcher's mask ever since.

While Luke isn't quite as fancy with the mallet as Joey gets in enough timely raps to make him highly valuable as a regular fixture and he works in the major portion of the games throughout the season. Luke is a smart backstop and handles himself with lots of pepper back of the platter.

In passing it might be interesting to note that the University of Alabama has sent a lot of important baseball material into the big leagues and the scouts of several of the clubs keep a watchful eye on the youngsters there.

But, getting back once more to the ambition of Joey to break Scott's record. It's quite an ambition. No slight indisposition is going to keep Sewell out of any game and his teammates are all pulling for the peppery shortstop to make good for the long string of consecutive games. The Deacon, who is still shortstopping around, doesn't think the Indian will be able to turn the trick. Scott knows that it isn't such a soft assignment.

But Joey feels confident that he will do it. If he plays through the season he will reach the 933 mark. That leaves him only 370 games to go to beat the mark hung up by Scott.

And 370 games is over two more seasons of regular playing. Considering it in that light it seems a right smart lot of chores to look forward to, but, after all, it's not so bad when he's already been at it steady since his streak started in 1922.

Suitable for Day and Evening Wear

Three Tiers of Accordion Plaiting an Attractive Feature of Outfit.

This charming frock is the answer to a woman's age-old question, "What shall I wear today?" It is one of the few gowns that can be worn on nearly all occasions, as Myrna Loy, featured "movie" actress, found out when she left hurriedly on a week-end trip, neglecting to take many things with her. Miss Loy can be seen wearing this very frock in a forthcoming picture called, "State Street Sadie."

The skirt, made of silver gray canton crepe, has three tiers of accordion plaiting, and the blouse, attached to the skirt, is a delicate cream lace with tiny sleeves. The eton effect blouse may or may not be worn with the outfit. A milan straw hat and gray kid shoes complete this very smart ensemble.

To say that a gown can be worn on nearly all occasions is what most people think an exaggeration, but this dress has really that attribute. With the jacket and the milan hat it is distinctly a lovely afternoon dress, in place at the most formal teas. If you wear a small felt sports hat and low-heeled shoes with the outfit, there is no reason why it should not go as a sports dress. In fact, you would say it is a sports dress with the proper hat and shoes. In the evening it can be worn as a dinner frock by removing the jacket, or even as a summer evening dress. High-heeled silver pumps and an extreme coiffure would, of course, have to replace the sports shoes and hat. To make this dress at home inexpensively, the lace blouse may be replaced by a flowered chiffon that contrasts well with the gray skirt and jacket. Inasmuch as the dress has no trimming, the making of it should present small difficulty.

Transparent Velvets on Fall and Winter Card

During the approaching fall and winter seasons, preparations for which are now being made, velvets are to take a step forward.

Again transparent velvets touch the high note. Surface printing in pastel colors, portraying flowers, is one example of the designs. Field flowers in two shades of a given color appear in a variety of soft tones with blues, browns, greens, dull reds and olives in the front rank.

Gold in pin stripes and in bayadere formations are presented and are often seen in connection with black, since the black and gold combination has an appeal in luxurious fabrics. Nevertheless, chiffon velvets are confidently offered in unobtrusive patterns. Chenille effects are featured. Brocades, too, are presented, especially in two tones of a given color.

Field flowers in outline only, scarcely noticeable, are shown in black on colored grounds, unobtrusively dark, and stems with leaves in outline only again show the scope of designs manufactured for luxurious costumes for rich women.

Pin-head checks in retiring colors are expected to gain in popularity.

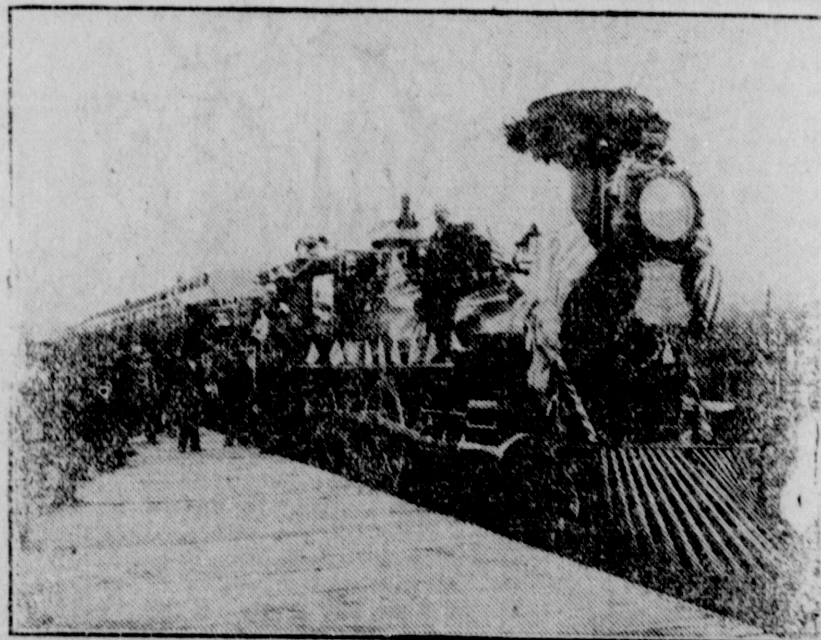

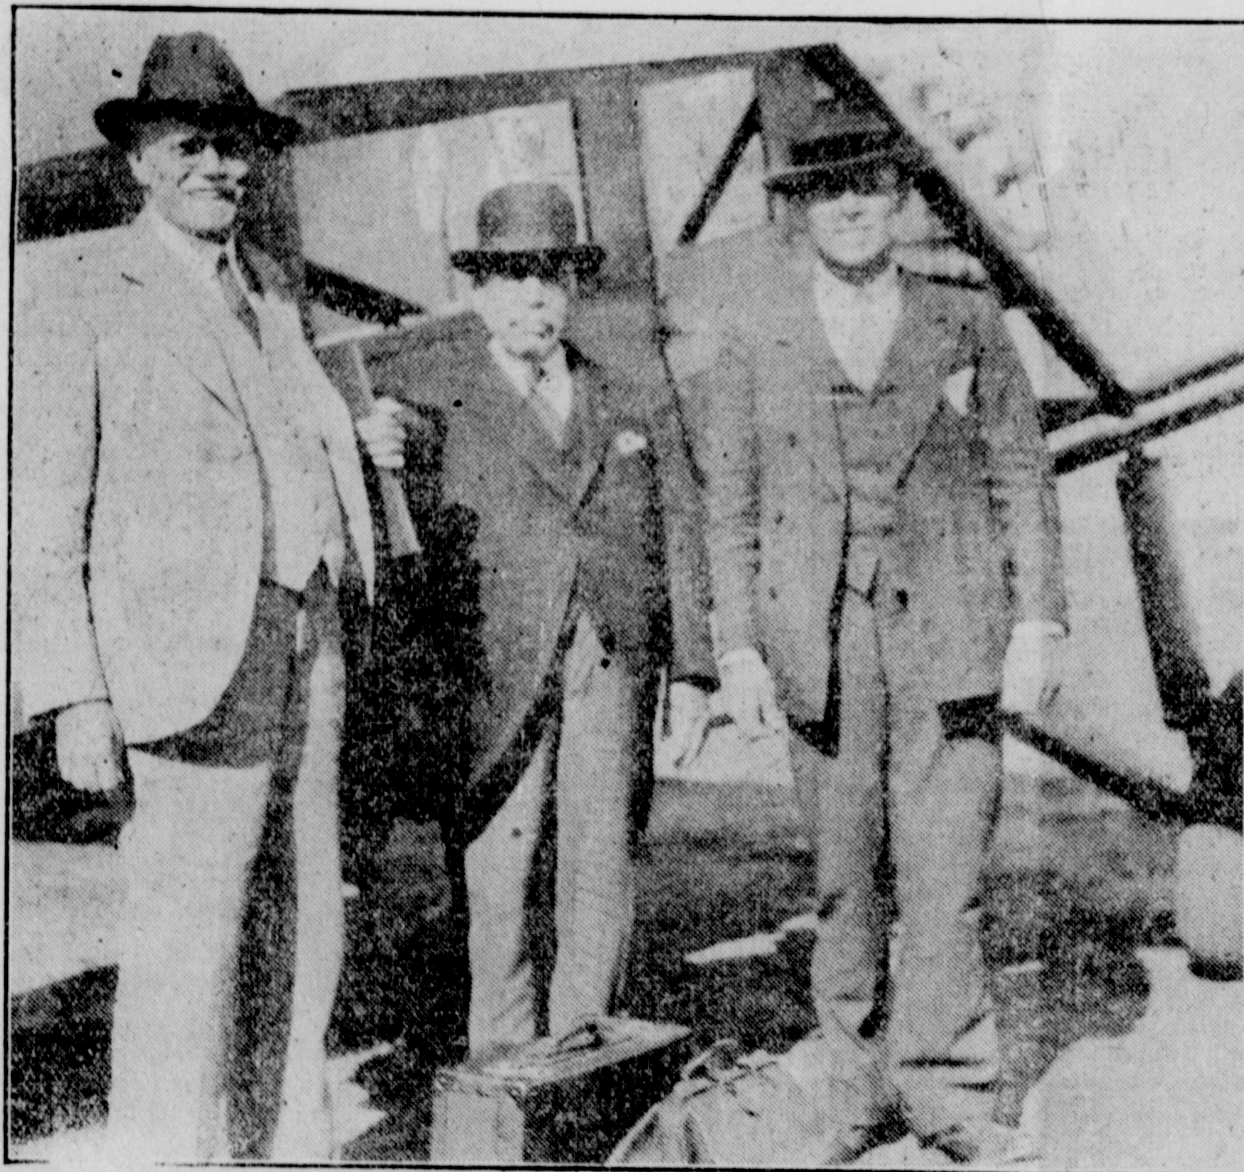

Belts Important Item in This Season's Dress

Belts are an important item in this season's dress. They are made of suede, lacquered leather, reptile skin, metal, ribbon and dress goods. Most of them are narrow, some but an inch wide, and those for sports suits have buckles of leather or metal. The belts of stitched cloth or silk or ribbon are worn with fine jeweled buckles. Crystal, enamel and all of the odd buckles of antique and artistic value are very much in vogue. Serpentine belts of silver and gilt are worn with soft gowns, and some flexible gilt chains, very fine and delicate, are shown with a jewel-studded ball on each end to be fastened with one loop.

GANG LEADER KILLED AMID CHICAGO THRONGS

At 4:30 in the afternoon, while thousands jammed the sidewalks at Dearborn and Madison Sts., the heart of Chicago's loop, a volley of shots was heard and Tony Lombardo, one of the city's most powerful gangsters, fell to the ground, a victim of the desperate, complex gang system in which he was so picturesque a figure. Beside him fell Tony Ferraro, Lombardo's bodyguard, shot twice and probably fatally wounded. Police linked this sensational slaying with the murder of Frankie Tate, Brooklyn gangland leader, two months ago. Photo, taken a few moments after shooting, shows the gangster just as he fell.

Former Governor Samuel R. Van Sant and E. J. Westlake, former Minnesota senator, a few days ago traveled 250 miles from Minneapolis to Fargo, N. D., in 2 hours 15 minutes through the air above the course where 45 years ago the latter was a passenger on the Northern Pacific's first transcontinental train. The Villard special, the title given the first "limited" drawn by a wood burning balloon stack locomotive on its trip in 1893, bore celebrities from five nations. Mr. Westlake at that time was superintendent of the dining car department of the Northern Pacific. It required this train 15 hours to make the run from the Twin Cities to Fargo. The train continued on to Gold Creek, Mont., where the golden spike was driven by Henry Villard, then president of the railway company.

When the Universal Air Lines' plane dropped out of the sky to the air port at Fargo Mr. Van Sant at the age of 85 completed his first trip in a plane. The two were greeted by representatives of the Fargo Chamber of Commerce and were guests in the evening at a banquet at which the forty-fifth anniversary of the inauguration of through transcontinental service was celebrated. Among the guests at the banquet was William J. Ridley, road engineer of the Northern Pacific lines, who was engineer on the Villard special. Above are shown from left to right, Mr. Westlake, Mr. Van Sant, and Pilot C. R. Sinclair, and the Villard special train.

AFTER GAMBLING RAID

Chicago was turned topsy-turvy again when the home Police Captain Luke Garriek was bombed and badly wrecked not many hours after the department "iron man," recently assigned to clean up gangland, had broken into an alleged gambling den and made sixty-four arrests. Lawrence Mangano, operator of the alleged gambling house, was nabbed and questioned by the police, but no definite charges were placed.

SETS OFF AIR DERBY

Ruth Elder, famous for her aeronautical exploits and now of the movies, with Mayor George E. Cryer of Los Angeles as he called New York "long distance" and gave signal to start the transcontinental air derby to Los Angeles. Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kan., leads the class A planes, while John Livingston, flying a Waco bi-plane, leads the class B field, and Robert W. Cantwell of Los Angeles sets the pace for class C.

DIFFERENT NEEDLES

The pine needles were singing. This was their song:

The Little Pine Needles.

And the wind said:

"I love you, pine tree. You're a delight In the winter to see— And in summer, just right."

"I'm glad I please you," said the pine tree, and the pine tree's branches swayed and blew the little pine needles about.

But no sooner had all this happened than they saw that the children had other things they called needles.

They hadn't wanted pine needles at all, and the pine needles had been worried at first when they heard the children saying they must begin and thread their needles right away.

They had worried for fear they were going to be used.

Oh, they had been most dreadfully worried. But now they felt as happy as could be.

The pine needles started a path. It was a most lovely path and they made it to wind all through the woods. The different pine needles would settle in one part of the woods and in the next part more pine needles would settle, so that they made the most wonderful soft carpet all by themselves.

Then the biggest pine tree of all and the other pine trees, too, admired the path made by the pine needles, and the biggest pine tree started talking to the Wind.

"Some people I've heard," said the pine tree, "like smooth roads so they can go motoring or automobiling or riding or whatever they call it along such roads.

"But we like the old-fashioned pine needle paths."

And the Wind said:

"Ah yes, we don't go in for new styles in roads. At least you don't."

"And Oh, Pine Tree, how I love to come whistling through the woods. You always make me feel so gentle and so happy and contented."

"When I whistle and sing through your trees I try to sing the very sweetest song I know."

"You always sing lovely songs for us to hear," said the pine tree as it swayed in the breeze and the other pine trees swayed too and whispered: "Lovely songs does the Wind sing."

So the Wind went on singing and the trees swayed and the pine needles rested so happily on the ground in the deep woods.

From time to time the Wind whispered little talks with the pine trees and the pine trees answered in their soft, sweet fashion.

The pine trees loved the woods and they were glad they did not have automobiles go through their wooded paths.

And then a little girl came walking along—her name was little Mahalia.

"I love the woods better than anything," she said, and the pine trees bowed at the praise and the Wind sang another song as an encore.

"How I love the pine needles, too, she said, and then she walked over to where the other children were and they all talked and sewed, fixing new things for their dolls.

It was a beautiful, happy day in the woods.

Cecelia's Baby

Several babies at the clinic were crying lustily. Cecelia, aged six, who had come with her mother and baby brother, sat anxiously apart in the big chamber, waiting for her mother.

"I said, 'Which baby is yours, Cecelia?'"

"The doodest one," said Cecelia, without hesitation.

Those to collect bounties recently are: Floyd L. Palmer, Ross Lake; S. J. Berry, Center, two wolves; Phil Buchite, Emily; Anton Hettver, Maple Grove; Ed. Schmidt, Sibley, two wolves; Archie Andrews, Emily; Godfrey Crane, Deerwood.

Odd Burial Custom

The Miau-tsz, a tribe in Asia, will not bury a man until they have tested the ground with an egg. The male relatives of the deceased go to the appointed spot, bearing a large basket of eggs. Stooping down, one of the natives lets an egg drop softly on the ground. Its breaking is considered an ill omen, and another spot is selected. In this way the party often wanders about for hours, dropping eggs until one falls without cracking the shell.

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgewood

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore Wilde, one of Broadway's favorite actors. His son, Frank, is an idler and, like his father, a spendthrift. The girl has a hard time mothering them both. Although the father's income is large, she is constantly in hot water. On the eve of a great opening night she suffers a heart attack while quarreling with one of his creditors. Janet, on the same day, accepts the marriage proposal of Gordon Pryor, a young and impecunious actor, but regrets it when she meets Leonard Quigg, a musician, who also loves her. On the night of his greatest stage triumph Janet's father drops dead. David Churchill, a young surgeon, enters Janet's life on the heels of this tragedy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

THERE was a general outcry. Everyone began speaking at once as they crowded around that still body that lay across the long supper table. Janet stood looking helplessly down at her father.

"Is he dead?" she asked pitifully.

David Churchill motioned the others back. He gave curt directions, and with the help of Friedrich Leipzig and James P. Ford, they laid the body of Fenimore Wilde on the floor.

Dr. Churchill knelt beside the body. There was a hush as he made the examination that he knew was useless. The little group stood conscious of the real drama in which they held such minor parts. Then David Churchill looked up, and nodded.

"Dead," he announced tersely. "Heart failure. Had he been troubled with this?"

Elizabeth, who had entered the room during the confusion, told him that her late employer had been suffering with heart trouble for a long time.

"His regular physician had better be called," the surgeon directed. "Not that he can do anything." Then he glanced at Janet, reading on her white face the mute misery which was so much more tragic than any tears.

"Don't stay here, Miss Wilde," David Churchill said.

Janet permitted herself to be led from the room. Gordon Pryor, white-faced, followed her into the hall.

"This is too dreadful, too ghastly," he exclaimed nervously. "What can I do for you, Janet?" But though his words offered help, there was no conviction in his tone. It was much more that of one demanding aid for himself. He mumbled incoherently, rather a sorry figure.

Janet hardly heard him. "No, go home, Gordon. I will let you know—oh, just go."

Janet went upstairs, Elizabeth with her. People began to pour out into the hall, and a subdued murmur of voices came up and assailed Janet's ears.

"Too dreadful. Can we get a cab? After his opening night. Absolutely upset. Lots of taxis at the corner. The papers, I've known him for years. I'm no good at anything like that. Where's the son? I must have a taxi. Lillian, your car's here, isn't it? A great actor! So dramatic an end. Where's the son? Just too shocked for words."

They chattered and blathered their stupid, senseless way out of the house. Augustus Slade sent up a useless message to Janet through Peter, asking if he could be of any use. At last they were gone, but David Churchill remained.

Janet sat in her room, a little frightened, but far more grief-stricken. She sat there feeling as though carved out of stone.

"Telephone round, Elizabeth," Janet instructed. "Get hold of my brother—and for God's sake leave me alone."

Janet sat there, unable to weep. The door of her room slightly ajar. And then in came the Critic. So Janet found, through the Critic, the relief of tears. She gathered him up in her arms, hugging him close, his fuzzy head against her cheek, and sobs convulsed her and the tears streamed down—beating that awful stab in her heart.

"They all went away, Critic," Janet sobbed. "But you—you're always here—aren't you?"

But presently Janet was calmer, and that sense of duty that was her New England inheritance awakened within her and would not be still. She changed rapidly from evening dress into something more suitable and then went downstairs.

David Churchill met her in the hall. "I ventured to remain," he said quietly. "Dr. Beck has come and gone—and he has made arrangements."

"It is very good of you, Dr. Churchill," Janet said calmly. She had reached his side, and she heard men moving about in the dining-room.

"Come in here—quickly," David Churchill demanded. He led her into the little room at the back of the hall that was half-pantry half-storeroom, switching on the light and closing the door. There was only one chair in the room, and Janet sat down. Dr. Churchill leaned against the pantry sink.

"I was all over and everything had been sold, and the debts paid, Janet found that she and Frank between them possessed less than a thousand dollars with which to face the world.

"We got your brother on the telephone some little time ago," he told her. "He ought to be here any minute."

Critic barked again as Janet heard the steps of several men who seemed to be carrying something heavy.

"They are taking him away?" she asked.

"Please don't listen," David Churchill begged her.

At last the house was empty of its late master, and then Frank arrived breathlessly. Janet, who by now was sitting with Churchill in the living room, noticed that it was a few minutes after four.

"I will leave you," Dr. Churchill said as he rose, and Janet had introduced her brother. "I don't think I can do anything else, but let me know, Miss Wilde."

"A complete stranger," Janet said of him when the surgeon had left the house, "but he took charge of everything."

Brother and sister sat talking for an hour before Janet rose to go to bed.

"There is one thing we don't seem to have mentioned," Frank said, as he opened the door for his sister. "It's horrible to mention it—but we will have to be practical—what about money?"

"Money?" Janet almost gasped. "Money—on such a night as this! Why, Frank! I haven't thought about it."

But in the succeeding days Janet found that she had to think a great deal about money. No sooner had the newspapers blared the news of the great actor's death, while the world of theatrical art bemoaned the loss of perhaps its most distinguished figure, than various gentlemen were calling and telephoning continually, and always on the subject of money.

The funeral was of a spectacular nature. All the great celebrities of the stage, a great number of authors and men famous in various walks of life were present at the obsequies. And after they were over, and after the remains of Fenimore Wilde had been committed to mother earth, Janet came back to the comfortable little house on 12th St. to face a horde of creditors.

"And there isn't any money to speak of," Janet confided one afternoon to Gordon Pryor. "Father never saved money, and all he has left are a few very questionable securities, as the poor dear never had any business sense, and practically no life insurance."

"That's terrible," Gordon sympathized. "How I wish that I could help you out."

When it was all over and everything had been sold, and the debts paid, Janet found that she and Frank between them possessed less than a thousand dollars with which to face the world.

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgelow

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JANET WILDE is the young and pretty daughter of Fenimore wilde, one of Broadway's favorite actors. His son, Frank, is a slacker and, like his father, a spendthrift. The girl has a hard time mothering them both. Although the father's income is large, he is constantly in hot water. On the eve of a great opening night he suffers a heart attack while quarreling with one of his creditors. Janet, on the same day, accepts the marriage proposal of Gordon Pryor, a young and impecunious actor, but regrets it when she meets Leonard Quigg, a musician, who also loves her. On the night of his greatest stage triumph Janet's father drops dead. David Churchill, a young surgeon, enters Janet's life on the heels of this tragedy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

THERE was a general outcry. Everyone began speaking at once as they crowded around that still body that lay across the long supper table. Janet stood looking helplessly down at her father.

"Is he dead?" she asked pitifully.

David Churchill motioned the others back. He gave curt directions, and with the help of Friedrich Leipzig and James P. Ford, they laid the body of Fenimore Wilde on the floor.

Dr. Churchill knelt beside the body. There was a hush as he made the examination that he knew was useless. The little group stood conscious of the real drama in which they held such minor parts. Then David Churchill looked up, and nodded.

"Dead," he announced tersely. "Heart failure. Had he been troubled with this?"

Elizabeth, who had entered the room during the confusion, told him that her late employer had been suffering with heart trouble for a long time.

"His regular physician had better be called," the surgeon directed. "Not that he can do anything." Then he glanced at Janet, reading on her white face the mute misery which was so much more tragic than any tears.

"Don't stay here, Miss Wilde," David Churchill said. "Janet permitted herself to be led from the room. Gordon Pryor, white-faced, followed her into the hall."

"This is too dreadful, too ghastly," he exclaimed nervously. "What can I do for you, Janet?" But though his words offered help, there was no conviction in his tone. It was much more that of one demanding aid for himself. He mumbled incoherently, rather a sorry figure.

Janet hardly heard him. "No, go home, Gordon. I will let you know—oh, just go!"

Janet went upstairs, Elizabeth with her. People began to pour out into the hall, and a subdued murmur of voices came up and assailed Janet's ears.

"Too dreadful. Can we get a cab? After his opening night. Absolutely upset. Lots of taxis at the corner. The papers, I've known him for years. I'm no good at anything like that. Where's the son? I must have a taxi. Lillian, your car's here, isn't it? A great actor! So dramatic an end. Where's the son? Just too shocked for words."

They chattered and blathered their stupid, senseless way out of the house. Augustus Slade sent up a useless message to Janet through Peter, asking if he could be of any use. At last they were gone, but David Churchill remained.

Janet sat in her room, a little frightened, but far more grief-stricken. She sat there feeling as though carved out of stone.

"Telephone round, Elizabeth," Janet instructed. "Get hold of my brother—and for God's sake leave me alone."

Janet sat there, unable to weep, the door of her room slightly ajar. And then in came the Critic.

So Janet found, through the Critic, the relief of tears. She gathered him up in her arms, hugging him close, his fuzzy head against her cheek, and sobs convulsed her and the tears streamed down—beating that awful stab in her heart.

"They all went away, Critic," Janet sobbed. "But you—you're always here—aren't you?"

But presently Janet was calmer, and that sense of duty that was her New England inheritance awakened within her and would not be stilled. She changed rapidly from evening dress into something more suitable and then went downstairs.

David Churchill met her in the hall.

"I ventured to remain," he said quietly. "Dr. Beck has come and gone—and he has made arrangements."

"It is very good of you, Dr. Churchill," Janet said calmly. She had reached his side, and she heard men moving about in the dining room.

"Come in here—quickly," David Churchill demanded. He led her into the little room at the back of the hall that was half-pantry half-storeroom, switching on the light and closing the door. There was only one chair in the room, and Janet sat down. Dr. Churchill leaned against the pantry sink.

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"I've been thinking of you for some time," he said. "I've been thinking of you for some time."

"We got your brother on the telephone some little time ago," he told her. "He ought to be here any minute."

Critic barked again as Janet heard the steps of several men who seemed to be carrying something heavy.

"They are taking him away?" she asked.

"Please don't listen," David Churchill begged her.

At last the house was empty of its late master, and then Frank arrived breathlessly. Janet, who by now was sitting with Churchill in the living room, noticed that it was a few minutes after four.

"I will leave you," Dr. Churchill said as he rose, and Janet had introduced her brother. "I don't think I can do anything else, but let me know, Miss Wilde."

"A complete stranger," Janet said of him when the surgeon had left the house, "but he took charge of everything."

Brother and sister sat talking for an hour before Janet rose to go to bed.

"There is one thing we don't seem to have mentioned," Frank said, as he opened the door for his sister. "It's horrible to mention it—but we will have to be practical—what about money?"

"Money?" Janet almost gasped. "Money—on such a night as this? Why, Frank! I haven't thought about it."

But in the succeeding days Janet found that she had to think a great deal about money. No sooner had the newspapers blared the news of the great actor's death, while the world of theatrical art bemoaned the loss of perhaps its most distinguished figure, than various gentlemen were calling and telephoning continually, and always on the subject of money.

The funeral was of a spectacular nature. All the great celebrities of the stage, a great number of authors and men famous in various walks of life were present at the obsequies. And after they were over, and after the remains of Fenimore Wilde had been committed to mother earth, Janet came back to the comfortable little house on 12th St. to face a horde of creditors.

"And there isn't any money to speak of," Janet confided one afternoon to Gordon Pryor. "Father never saved money, and all he has left are a few very questionable securities, as the poor dear never had any business sense, and practically no life insurance."

"That's terrible," Gordon sympathized. "How I wish that I could help you out."

When it was all over and everything had been sold, and the debts paid, Janet found that she and Frank between them possessed less than a thousand dollars with which to face the world.
